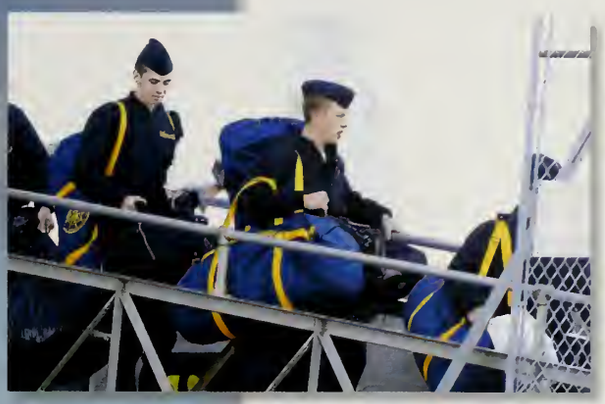
KENNEDY



WELCOME
HOME
JOHN!
WE MISSED YOU!!

Admiral Richard Gurnon

Congratulations on a job well done!

The Class of 2010 has set sail for distant harbors. That fact brings great joy as we all celebrate the culmination of the hard work by the members of the class and the faculty and staff, but it also brings some sadness as this completes your time in training here in Buzzards Bay - your "home" during this important part of your development. Unfortunately, you must leave your shipmates and mentors behind. A ship in the harbor is safe but of course that is not why ships were made.

I am very proud of each one of you in the class. Some years ago you made a very difficult decision to buck peer pressure and chose the road less traveled. That took true courage. During the intervening years you have experienced times of excitement as you made new friends, learned new skills and saw new places. There were also tough times, however, when you had to summon your courage on Sunday evenings and leave the safety of your home to return to the demanding crush of "five years of college jammed into four".
You routinely waved goodbye to family and friends from the decks of ships, the windows of cars or the doors of airports. Saying goodbye never became routine. It always hurt a bit. During these past years you have grown tougher, more confident, better prepared. You have stood taller as you mastered the skills of your trade and the wisdom gained from experience.

I am particularly pleased to be able to witness your successful completion of the rigorous undergraduate curriculum and, for the cadets in the class, the very difficult regimental leadership program. After weathering the storms and steering past the rocks and shoals at one of the most difficult college choices in the nation, you have sailed into the harbor of your dreams.

Waving goodbye to you will hurt a bit, but I am proud of what you have become and wish for you the very best on your new voyages.

Best regards,

Rick Gurnon

MASSACHUSETTS
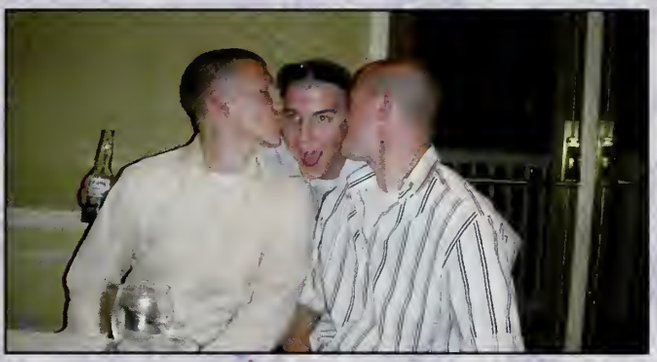
MARITIME ACADEMY



M*M*A
MARITIME ACADEMY
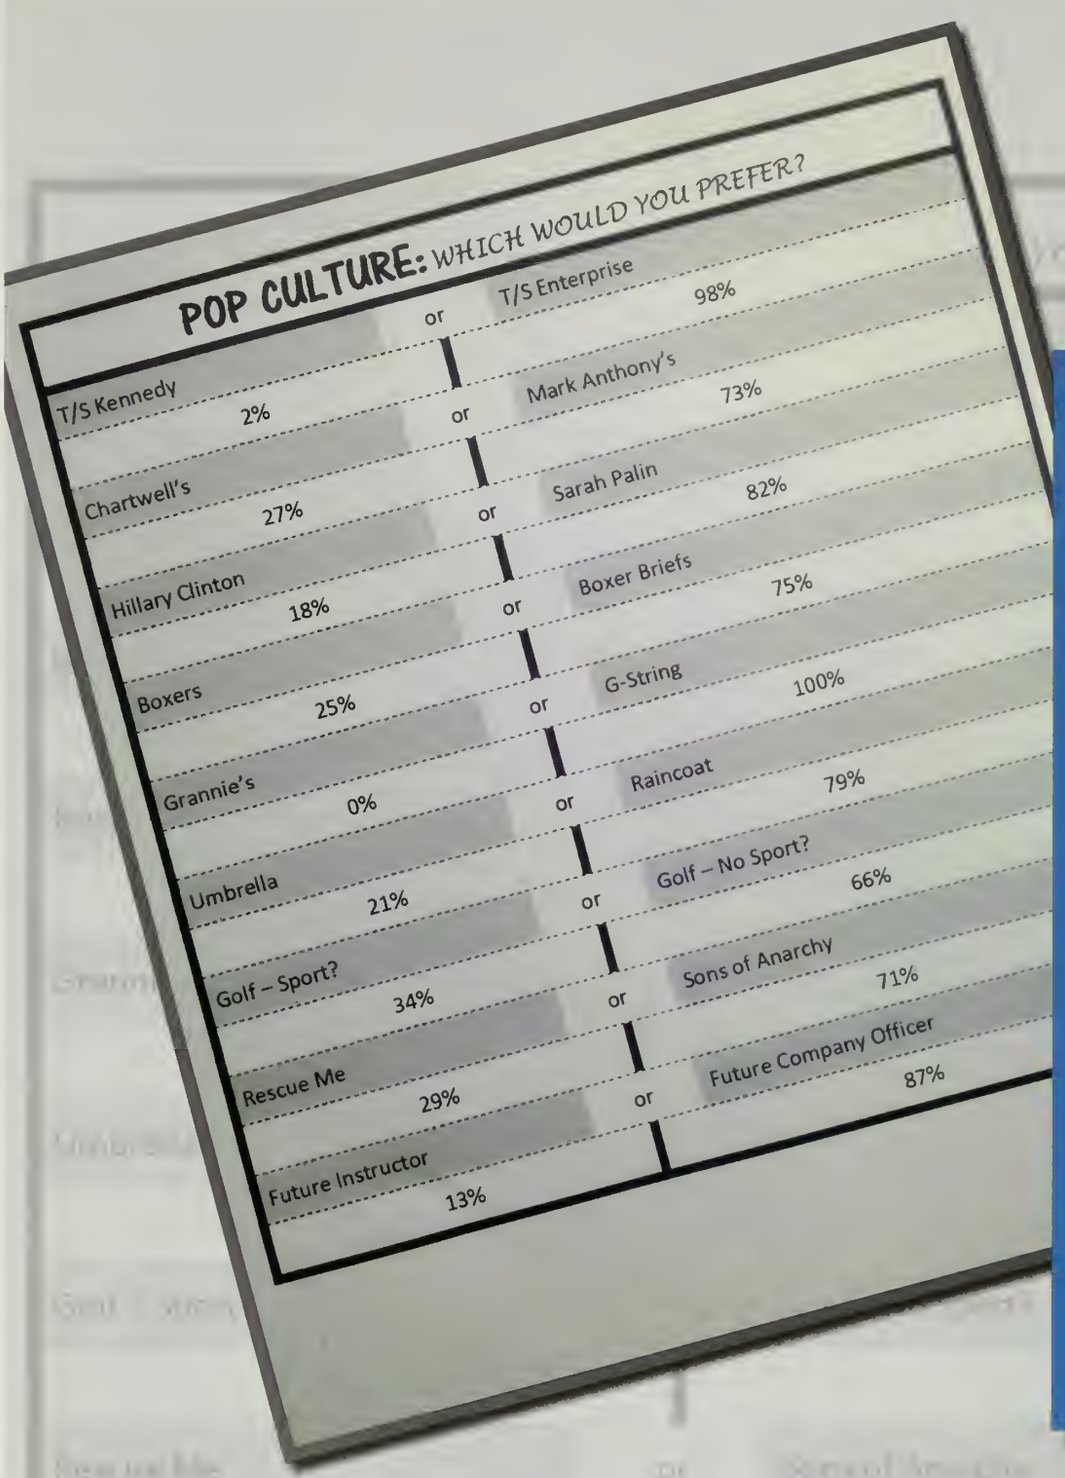
Established
1891



A light hearted effort to capture the haphazard mood of the graduating seniors was accounted for with a list of random "pop culture" questions.

The sole purpose of the simple survey was to remember & reflect on the moment... to lay account for the casual preferences of the time.

Do to the fact that the editor arbitrarily constructed the series of options, it is only befiiting to examine how 'n' sync' or 'out-of-sync' the editor is with the other classmates of 2010.

What is your preferred choice? If you can, be challenged to make a decision or rate the editor's choices. If you are looking back at this 'pop culture' list after a significant time has past, answer this: Have your original choices changed? If so, why?

1. T/S Kennedy vs T/S Enterprise

In 2009, the Academy's training ship, T/S ENTERPRISE was renamed T/S KENNEDY in honor of the noteworthy United States Senator from Massachusetts, Edward "Ted" Kennedy. The majority of seniors had fond and regrettable memories aboard the training vessel [mandatory maintenance, foreign ports of call, inspections, watchstanding, Chartwells, Capt. Bushy, etc.] It is only natural that they remained affectionate toward the training ship known to them as T/S ENTERPRISE. The editor strongly agreed with classmates upon this choice.

2. Chartwells vs Mark Anthony's

While both food service providers are very popular on campus, Mark Anthony's [a local pizza restaurant commonly referred to as Mark A's] was favored by most seniors. While the editor wouldn't voluntarily pay for either, his choice was Chartwells for its consistent, yet variety of food options & infamous "chicken patty Tuesday's":which single-handedly provided much needed incentive through the extended years.

3. Hillary Clinton vs Sarah Palin

Although never sure why, the editor always harbored an intense dislike toward Hillary Clinton. That apparently lasted until the likes of Sarah Palin and the hilarious SNL skits came along. Every time she spoke, the editor couldn't help but think, "...she really is just a pretty face after all." So which did the editor really prefer? NO COMMENT.

4. Boxers vs Boxer Briefs

Since briefs have, for the most part, gone the way of the Samurai, it seemed no longer relevant as an option. Editor's choice: boxer briefs. They ensure that the airport hasn't lost the luggage.

5. Granny Pannies vs G-String

One word: AGREED

6. Umbrella vs Raincoat

Since MMA is located along the southwest tip of the Cape Cod Canal, it was almost always windy. When it rained, the umbrella was found to be inadequate. No matter how it was tilted, it seemed that the rain just came from right underneath or floated in horizontally, due to the wind. The raincoat was obviously a better practical choice, yet more of a hassle. Nevertheless, since the editor was practically the only cadet who used it, he biasedly chose the umbrella.

7. Golf: Sport vs No-Sport?

This was one activity which evoked interestingly heated debates at meal times. On warm and sunny days, golf may have taken precedence over class, homework, and prime sleeping time. It was such a widespread phenomenon among cadets that it couldn't be referred to as anything other than a sport. However, for the editor, who didn't play golf at all, it was more simple. If you didn't break a sweat while playing it, then it was hardly a sport to begin with.

8. Rescue Me vs Sons of Anarchy

Two of the wildest and most popular television shows that aired on the FX Network suited different personalities. 'Rescue Me' - revolved around the life of noble firefighters in New York City who risked their lives daily. It was a contrast to 'Sons of Anarchy' - which detailed a notorious outlaw motorcycle club that ruthlessly fell trap to the seduction of money, power, and blood. For the editor, there is no comparison. Self indulging law breakers couldn't compete with the heroic civil servants of the fire department: Rescue Me.

9. Future Instructor vs Future Company Officer

While most seniors promised not to look in the rear view mirror as they sped off campus, and poked fun at the notion of ever returning to MMA after graduation, the fact of the matter is that some have undoubtedly returned. When given the non-negotiable choice, seniors preferred to serve as a Company Officer. The editor disagreed: "No pun intended, but baby-sitting..." disorderly cadets was not an appealing option.
